

Special Unification Day Message

Conveyed By

His Excellency Joseph Nyuma Boakai, Sr.
President of the Republic of Liberia

On the Occasion of

2026 National Unification Day
Monrovia, Liberia

Thursday, May 14, 2026

Fellow Liberians,

Today, we observe National Unification Day, a special moment in our national calendar that invites us to reflect on who we are as a people and what binds us together as one nation.

Liberia is a country rich in history, resilient in spirit, and blessed with a people whose strength has always rested in our shared sense of identity, common purpose, and enduring hope. Across our counties, communities, traditions, and backgrounds, we remain one people, united by our love for this Land and our commitment to its future.

National Unification Day is not merely a date of observance. It is a celebration of our common nationhood, our shared journey, and the enduring truth that Liberia is strongest when all her sons and daughters move forward together in mutual respect, patriotism, and collective responsibility.

Our national story is one of perseverance, courage, faith, and renewal. Through every chapter of our history, the Liberian people have demonstrated remarkable strength of character and an unwavering determination to rise, rebuild, and progress. That enduring spirit remains one of our greatest national assets.

As your President, I remain deeply committed to building a Liberia in which every citizen feels seen, heard, valued, and empowered to contribute meaningfully to national development. We are working to create opportunities for our young people, strengthen our institutions, expand economic possibilities, and ensure that development reaches communities across our nation.

But nation-building is not the work of government alone. It is a shared responsibility. It calls upon each of us, regardless of where we come from or what perspectives we hold, to place country above self and to contribute positively to the continued advancement of our beloved Republic.

To our young people, you are the custodians of Liberia's tomorrow. Carry forward the values of patriotism, discipline, innovation, and service. Dream boldly, work diligently, and remain committed to building a nation that reflects your highest aspirations.

To our elders, traditional leaders, religious communities, women, civil society, public servants, and all citizens at home and abroad, I extend appreciation for your continued role in strengthening the moral and civic fabric of our nation.

Let this day remind us that Liberia's future will be shaped not simply by what government does, but by what all of us choose to do together as one people with one shared destiny.

As we celebrate this important day, let us renew our commitment to peace, mutual respect, civic duty, and patriotic service. Let us continue to nurture a Liberia that inspires confidence, rewards hard work, embraces opportunity, and reflects the dignity of her people.

Liberia belongs to all of us. Her promise is our shared inheritance. Her progress is our common responsibility.

Let us THINK LIBERIA, LOVE LIBERIA, and BUILD LIBERIA.

May God continue to bless the Republic of Liberia and all her people.

Happy National Unification Day.
